Session by IC² Leaders with AITians

A Session with IC² was conducted on 26th of August 2016 at AITS, Tirupati campus. Mr. Giridhar, CEO & Founder, 7-in-Q, introduced as Host Incubator in Andhra Pradesh, advised students to take their dreams forward with discipline and perseverance to achieve their goals. Mr. Glenn Robinson, Program Manager, University of Texas, Austin told the works done by George Kamersky. He explained that the students are to be provided with job opportunities instead of outsourcing their skills. Innovation, Creativity and Capital are the needed things of the hour. Invention and Entrepreneurship are needed to make a Technopolis. Local People are to be communicated and find out their works, analyze and try to give a solution technically which is also of quality and also available in reduced cost. 85% of new ideas fail, mainly not because of technology or funding, but by not providing a market for the technology with real world problems. Students should pass along their ideas plus knowledge to improve the community and nation as a whole.

Mr. Glenn Robinson interacting with students

Mr. Vishal Khanna, Senior Assistant Director, Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce & Industry (FICCI), New Delhi, told that 448 innovators created 3000 jobs and 45% of them are women. He gave instances of students who had innovative ideas, submitted their ideas and been funded with rupees from 10 lakhs to 10 crores. The Government of India and Andhra Pradesh, initiative of Make in India will be a success only if we think beyond and take a step by show casing it in India Innovative Program, which will help Government to know about us and our research.

Sri. C. Gangi Reddy, recommended students to select a role model and follow to build their life to achieve success in their lives with motto of "Be a Job Provider than Job Taker".

MESSAGE BY THE PRINCIPAL

No wealth and no money can purchase even a minute of time in your life. There must be creator's will and wish to invest some more time on you to carry on. Hence it's a divine gift to have a today for you. Individual should realize the importance of time and fulfill the expectations desired from by the almighty and our attitudes, manners, values and efforts must be in such a way that we lead quality life.

A person who reduces the gap between waking-up and getting-up and after practicing this principle, within year, he is expected to win the disease of procrastination. If your target is set for Saturday, you will be able to do on Friday itself. You will be accustomed to fulfill the expected things well before the dead line. And another principle to flourish in relationships and in career is that 'expect more from yourself' instead of developing expectations on parents, or through relationships or on god. Practice certain principles, develop in your certain traits...to make your life beautiful.

Good luck...
